

8 Steps

To Accelerate Change in 2015

2016 will mark the 20th anniversary of John Kotter's Leading Change, a book that's been widely recognized as the seminal work in the field of change management. It introduced the 8-Step Process for Leading Change with a message to the reader:

“You can lead change.
Here is how to do it.”

Six years ago, Dr. Kotter began observing organizations as they implemented the 8-Step Process with help from his firm. He saw proof that our world is moving a great deal faster than it was in the early 1990s.

Total Patent Applications Annually

Hard Drive Disk Storage Space

No matter how you look at it,
the world is moving faster...

Shares Traded on NYSE Annually

Dr. Kotter also observed that the rate at which our world is changing is increasing,
but our ability to keep up with it is not.

What has remained the same?

The two fundamental reasons behind most transformations are still the need...

- 1 To increase revenues/profits or decrease costs
- 2 To become more effective or more efficient

Or both.

What are some specific reasons to change? Is your organization...

- Falling behind the competition today
- Ill-prepared to compete in the future
- Too slow to execute
- Quick to execute but slow to think, strategize, and plan
- Too slow to innovate
- Too slow or ineffective to integrate M&As
- Too siloed to collaborate

Do your leaders and workforce present obstacles? Are they...

- Disengaged from their roles, colleagues, managers, customers
- Falsely urgent: consumed by constant activity and firefighting
- Complacent: lulled into thinking that what got you here will get you there
- Lopsided: focused more on management than on leadership
- Siloed: known more for boundaries than gateways

We at Kotter International have expanded our thinking and work – have enhanced our 8-Step Process –

to give organizations additional capabilities to lead change under the particular conditions of today's world.

The breakthrough is in Accelerate, our book length study published by Harvard in 2014. We have increased the scope of the 8-Step Process from its original version to give it reach and potency in 2015 and beyond...

Both versions are relevant and effective today, but they are designed to serve different contexts and objectives

Leading Change's 8-Step Process (1996)

Respond to or affect episodic change in finite and sequential ways.

Drive change with a small, powerful core group.

Function within a traditional hierarchy.

Focus on doing one thing very well in a linear fashion over time.

Accelerate's 8-Step Process (2014)

Run the steps concurrently and continuously.

Form a large volunteer army from up, down, and across the organization to be the change engine.

Function in a network flexibly and agilely outside of, but in conjunction with, a traditional hierarchy.

Constantly seek opportunities, identify initiatives to capitalize on them, and complete them quickly.

The purpose of this eBook is to introduce you to the enhanced 8-Step Process

STEP 1

Create a Sense of Urgency

Your top leaders must describe an opportunity that will appeal to individuals' heads and hearts and use this statement to raise a large, urgent army of volunteers.

Companies with engaged employees have

5X

higher shareholder returns

71% of the workforce is actively disengaged. Annually,
this costs U.S.
organizations

3 0 0

BILLION

What is your Big Opportunity?

- Do you see a Big Opportunity that could ignite the hearts and minds of your people?
- Do you know how to identify, articulate and communicate it?
- Are you able to connect an external change factor with a special capability of your organization?
- What are the stakes if you succeed?
Consequences if you fail?

Windows of opportunity are appearing, opening, and closing more quickly than ever before. If you are able to identify even a glimmer of a Big Opportunity, it's important to quickly and urgently engage and mobilize around it before competitors seize the window.

STEP 2

Build a Guiding Coalition

A volunteer army needs a coalition of effective people — coming from its own ranks — to guide it, coordinate it and communicate its activities.

Real collaboration is about stepping outside of traditional institutional structures to focus on results. In fact, there is an 81% correlation between collaboration and innovation.

Is your organization capable of coordinating and sustaining change?

- Can you get buy-in from 50% of the organization to drive large-scale change?
- Do you have a way to engage a formalized network to take on innovative change initiatives?
- Is work on strategic initiatives seen as "Have to" or "Want to"?
- Do current hierarchical and silo-based structures stifle communication and engagement?

Consider establishing a Guiding Coalition of engaged individuals from across your organization to help you institute the specific attitudes and practices necessary to launch, drive and — most importantly — sustain change.

STEP 3

Form a Strategic Vision and Initiatives

Dr. Kotter defines strategic initiatives as targeted and coordinated "activities that, if designed and executed fast enough and well enough, will make your vision a reality."

Business Week attributes

higher return on several key measures for companies with well-crafted mission statements describing why the business exists and its optimal desired future state.

Is your organization aligned under a Vision and how to act on it?

- Where in your organization are people aligned around a single idea that inspires them to do things that move ideas forward?
- Do people within the organization speak about the goals in the same way with the same priority? If not, how can these be aligned?
- If you asked people around the organization about the Change Vision, how many different answers would you get?

The better people can envision where they are going, the more they can focus on specific initiatives that will make that vision a reality. The strategic initiatives best positioned to capitalize on the Big Opportunity should be prioritized and staffed. With whom? That leads us to our next step...

STEP 4

Enlist a Volunteer Army

Large-scale change can only occur when very significant numbers of employees amass under a common opportunity and drive in the same direction.

Organizations with a high number of actively engaged employees have an average of 147%

higher earnings per share than the norm.

Is it possible to create and tap a volunteer network at your organization?

- What are examples of people in your organization who "step forward and act"? If there are few examples, what is stopping them?
- Are employees invited and encouraged to help your organization implement its strategies? If yes, what are the successes?
- How do you ensure that the successes are repeatable? How do you keep the volunteers engaged?

Accelerate explains that "history has demonstrated that it is possible to find many change agents ... but only if people are given a choice and feel they truly have permission to step forward and act." You must build excitement around the Big Opportunity and develop a feeling that one "Wants To" (not "Has To") contribute.

STEP 5

Enable Action by Removing Barriers

By removing barriers such as inefficient processes or hierarchies, leaders provide the freedom necessary for employees to work across boundaries and create real impact.

of leaders agree that their own management strategies are too bureaucratic and are a nuisance

“Innovation is less about generating brand-new ideas and more about knocking down barriers to making those ideas a reality.”

~John Kotter, Accelerate

Do you know where your organization's barriers are?

- Have past change initiatives in your organization failed? If so, what barriers stopped them from succeeding?
- Which of the most common barriers do you have — silo parochialism, pressure to make quarterly numbers, complacency, rules and procedures, or a limited number of change leaders?
- Barriers can be commonly stated and accepted statements that, while appearing helpful, can deter attempts to get past legacy obstacles. These are statements like, "It's just not done that way," or, "We tried that before — it didn't work."

Over time, the hierarchies that serve organizations so well in terms of efficiency and order can limit transformation. The cross-functional Guiding Coalition can work in tandem with hierarchical management to help change leaders overcome barriers.

STEP 6

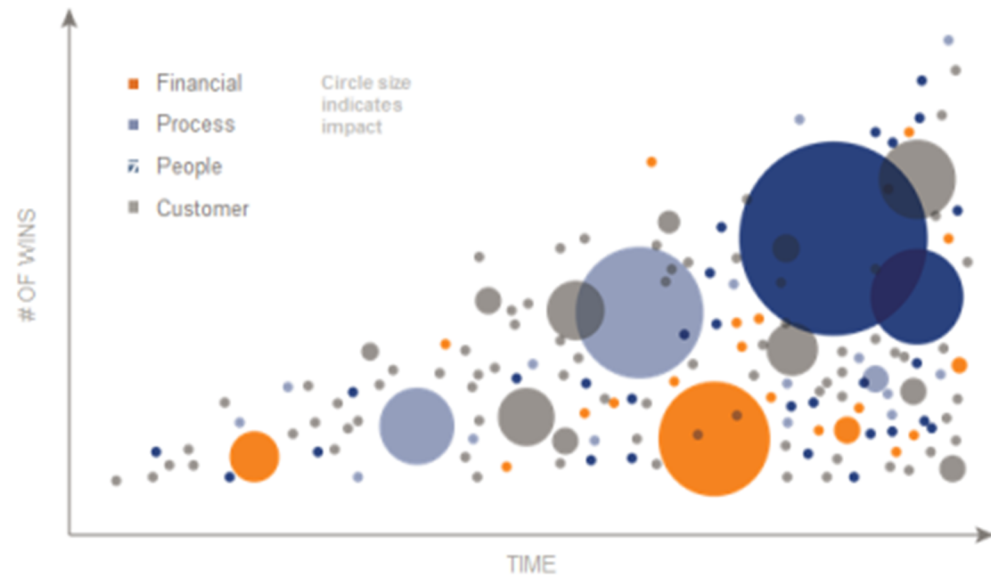

Generate Short-Term Wins

Wins are the molecules of results. They must be collected, categorized, and communicated — early and often — to track progress and energize your volunteers to drive change.

It takes about six years of hard work to become an overnight success.

~Seth Godin

Wins accumulate over time and lead to tangible business results.

Do you generate and celebrate wins?

- What are some examples of initiatives in your organization that were successful and part of a sustained effort? Why did they work?
- How often do you hear about successes in your organization? If rarely, is it because there aren't any, or because they aren't shared and celebrated?
- Does your organization have what it takes to collect, correlate and celebrate wins?

A change vision can take a long time to achieve. Dr. Kotter's research has shown that generating and celebrating wins along the way is vital to acceleration towards and focus on the goal.

STEP 7

Sustain Acceleration

Change leaders must adapt quickly in order to maintain their speed. Whether it's a new way of finding talent or removing misaligned processes, they must determine what can be done — every day — to stay the course towards the vision.

Are you balancing change management with change leadership?

Management

- Planning
- Budgeting
- Organizing
- Staffing
- Problem Solving
- Measuring
- Doing What We Know How To Do
- Producing Dependable, Reliable Results

Leadership

- Establishing Direction
- Aligning People
- Motivating
- Inspiring
- Mobilizing People to Achieve Astonishing Results
- Propelling Us Into The Future

Balance is the essential factor in sustaining acceleration. How do you counterweight the tendency to over-manage? Where are the opportunities for people up and down your organization to behave more like leaders?

STEP 8

Institute Change

To ensure new behaviors are repeated over the long-term, it's important that you define and communicate the connections between these behaviors and the organization's success.

When surveyed, 90% of managers and employees said the importance of agility and speed has increased in the last 5 years.

How can you institute the change?

How do you use the persistent celebration of Big Opportunity wins to maintain the engagement of the volunteer army and embed these new ways of working in the organization?

How can you balance reliability and agility?

There must be clear communication and synchronization between the traditional hierarchical structure (on the left side) and the innovation network of volunteers (on the right side). How will you achieve this?

The need to transform is critical

If you know you need to transform but aren't sure where to start, call us:
We will teach you how to execute the 8 Steps yourselves.

Us

You

We help clients transform into fast, agile organizations

We are the world's only firm capable of combining our empirical research and proprietary process to help your organization truly transform itself. Learn to lead your large-scale transformation by working with our Advisory Services. Build your change leadership skills through our Center for Leaders. Or work with both to create sustainable change capacity and capability across all levels of your organization. Regardless of the approach, tangible business impact is the result.

CONTACT US

Phone: (855) 400.4712

Email: Info@Kotterinternational.com

Website: Kotterinternational.com

Twitter: @KotterIntl

